Adancian, cattle seems to indicate that Canada is more loyal to Britair, than Britain is to Canada, and judging by her conduct towards her western colonies, ahe is comparatively indifferent to her wellare. It appears to be a most monitrous piece of jobbery to prohibit the importation of Canadian cattle from the country for the unsertle reason that contracts non of canadian cattle from the country or the puerile reason that one out of bousands of the imported cattle is and of lavies been initiated with pulmonary. For this papears to be extremely abund and unjust. Absird-because pulmonary leases have more reben known to exist while country, and because it is a solitary tention and aumented of butters of the country. la this country, and busines it has solliary exception and suspected of being a discassed lung of some other animal. Unjust because it is the only market for the sale because it is the only market for the sale of Canadian stock that we have accessible, and also because the United kingdom have the first claim upon our productions, considering the fact that she cannot produce enough in her own borders to satisfy the natural appellie. It may or may not be a fact that one of Britair's Premiers made the assertion that Canada was more made the assertion that Canada was more brouble to Britain than she was worth but the facts appear to indicate that Brit-dal is becoming more of a trouble to Can-ada than the latter is to the former. It penditio apply this Protective Policy for the benefit of the home farmers, and thus bring up the cost of living to the British millions. It is not ours to change it, but it seems to indighte that the result will eventually be closer relationship with our natural relations, Uncle Sum. The recent Reciprocity.
